

Bartholomew and the Oobleck: First Grade Lesson

Book Summary

The King of Didd loved to look into the sky. But he was increasingly unhappy when he saw only rain, snow, fog, and sunshine. As a powerful king, he decided to change things so he could get more variety. The story follows Bartholomew, the page boy, as he witnesses the bizarre events that unfold.

Comprehension Follow up Questions:

Ask the students to complete the comprehension questions sheets after the story has been read. To help the students print the Word Bank Words on the Blackboard.

Weather Watcher Kite

Materials needed:

Kite pattern, sheets of weather types: sunny, rainy, cloudy, partly cloudy, snowy and long ribbon for kite tail.

Students will color a kite which will be used to keep track of the weather for the next several weeks. Make sure students place their names on the kite somewhere. When the students have finished creating the kite help them put the date and temperature on the correct kite tail for today's weather. The tail should then be glued or taped on the tail of the kite to display the weather conditions for today. For the next several weeks each day's weather should be recorded on the tail of the kite. At the end of the project a graph can be created displaying the results.
